

the Cape Rock

HOME ABOUT SUBMIT ARCHIVE BUY PRINT PRESS

Hallucination Is Everywhere by Josef Krebs

MAY 25, 2020

Hallucination is everywhere

Hallucination is everywhere

The brain is a Nosferatu shut in a coffin

The New Yorker spills theories into your morning expulsions

Like a rabid giraffe

Beautiful yet dangerous

In unexpected ways

A system undermining a system

An unexpected momentary illumination

Callous as a truck hauling debris

Stabbing at necessity and routine

In a ruinous habit that gives respite

From base opportunity and self serving

Advancement

Day by mottled day

<https://caperockpoetry.com/2020/05/25/hallucination-is-everywhere-by-josef-krebs>