

Ze'eva Cohen, Princeton University Professor Emerita, is a dancer and choreographer who, in 2010, retired from her 40-year role as founder and director of the dance program. She was born in Israel and came to the U.S. to study at Juilliard and perform with the Anna Sokolow Dance Company. A founder of Dance Theatre Workshop, she was later known for her groundbreaking solo repertory performances. As choreographer, she worked with her own dance group as well as many national and international dance companies, including Boston Ballet and Batsheva Dance Company of Israel.
